

More coronavirus measures lifted

The current coronavirus variant is making people less ill and the number of people being admitted to intensive care remains limited. So more measures are being lifted. Some will be lifted immediately, others as of 23 March. Coronavirus has not gone away. Respect each other's choices. For instance, if someone asks you to wear a face mask when you normally wouldn't.

Face masks

Wearing a face mask on public transport will no longer be mandatory as of 23 March. But it is still advised.

It is always sensible to wear a face mask in crowded places.

Face masks will remain mandatory in the airside section of airports and on planes.

Coronavirus entry pass

As of 23 March coronavirus entry passes (1G, pre-admission testing) will no longer be required at any location.

However, in many other European countries you still need a QR code to go to a restaurant, for example.

Testing, self-isolation and quarantine

If you have COVID-19 symptoms, stay at home and do a test.

Education: pupils, students and staff no longer have to do self-tests twice a week.

If you test positive for coronavirus, self-isolate for at least 5 days.

If you have had contact with someone who has tested positive, you may need to quarantine. Do the Quarantine Check at quarantainecheck.rijksoverheid.nl/en.

Working from home

The advice on working from home no longer applies. People are encouraged to work from home for some of their hours.

Travel

As of 23 March:
Travellers arriving from an EU/Schengen country do not need to show a negative test result or proof of vaccination or recovery. No entry restrictions.*

Travellers arriving from a country that is not part of the EU/Schengen area:

- Nationals of EU countries: no negative test result required, no entry restrictions.*
- All other travellers: no negative test result required, EU entry ban still in force (exceptions apply).

Self-testing is advised immediately on arrival in the Netherlands and on day 5.

* The health declaration must still be completed for entry.

Advice to avoid infection:

Wash your hands often.

Cough and sneeze into your elbow.

If you have symptoms, stay home and do a test.

Ensure a good flow of fresh air.

Get all your COVID vaccinations, including the booster.
